PROJECT UPDATE ON THE CANADA WATER MASTERPLAN & DETAILS OF AN UPCOMING SERIES OF TOPIC DISCUSSIONS

Birds-eye view of the sites being masterplanned together by British Land, known as the Canada Water Masterplan.
Project update from British Land

Since spring 2014, there has been ongoing community consultation to inform the development of the Canada Water Masterplan.

Over the summer we have been reviewing the masterplan following the purchase of the Surrey Quays Leisure Park site earlier this year. This review has focused on ensuring we can take the best approach to a masterplan that is joined-up across all three sites.

As part of this, the team have been looking at the mix of uses in the masterplan, including a greater amount of business and employment generating uses. We have also been bringing forward temporary uses for the masterplan area; starting with hosting Secret Cinema in the Printworks building over the summer.

In parallel, we are working with Southwark Council on including a replacement for Seven Islands Leisure Centre as part of the masterplan, and seeking to agree the commercial terms for the masterplan.

In August we held a number of ‘surgery style’ drop-in sessions and two focus sessions on Canada Water Dock. The feedback from the focus sessions is on the Canada Water Masterplan website, details below, where you can also find an update on the Surrey Quays Leisure Park Reserved Matters application.

Topic discussions

We will be holding a number of topic sessions over the coming months, facilitated by Soundings, which we hope you’ll be able to join us for. These will help inform development of the Draft Masterplan which will be shared for community feedback in the new year.

Leading into the topic discussions we will be holding two introductory sessions to help make sense of the planning and design process in the context of the masterplan. We’ll explore who is involved, the policy, what happens when and how decisions are made.

Further topic sessions will inform development of the masterplan, looking at streets and spaces, and the character of the new places created - specifically the high street and town centre. Please check the website or sign-up for details.
